THE HUMAN HAIR.

(173- Personal appearance is influenced by nothing more materially than a laxuriant crop of hair. The loss of the hair in most cases is occasioned solely through neglect of those means which really do exist to preserve it. To prevent its decay, and accomplish its complete restoration, is the object to which Mr. Clirchugh has for 12 years directed his attention. The growth and organization of the hair, its structure, as connected with the anatomy of the skin has been his peculiar study. To attain full information on this subject, he attended the lectures of the most celebrated physiologists in London and Edinburgh, dissected the different layers of the skin, examined the nerves, blood-vessels and bulbs connected with both skin and hair, and by these means discovered the causes which occasion baldness, and produce gray hair. Having obtained a perfect knowledge of all these subjects, and after munerous experiments on heads in different stages of baldness, and varying them according to the constitution of the individuals, the result was the production of his celebrated

TRICOPHEROUS, or MEDICATED COMPOUND. It is composed of ingredients of the most vivifying powers combined with those which will promote the circulation give a healthy action to the skin, and restore the relaxed functions of the nerves, blood-vessel and absorbents. It will thus be evident that only by such means can the restoration of the hair ever be effected.

In proof of the confidence which CLIRE HUGH has in restoring the hair, he is prepared to treat with any gentleman who would wish to have the Conpound applied by himself at his Hair Cutting Rooms. This will be done without eny charge until the hair is restored. Individuals of the highest respectability who have had their hair restored can be referred to, who will testify to the great efficacy of the Compound.

Ladies should observe that wherever the has hair become thin or broken—often caused by tyng the hair too tight this Compound only can restore it. In such cases, all wills
